to thwart that eager-beaver waiter who keeps trying to slide a plate of pie onto your table. And so with the face; the layers of time that wrinkle a face are tributes to its resilience. It has weathered the helter-skelter twenties and it has survived the frantic pace of the thirties when most of us had full time jobs and children. The marks of having lived a life rich in love, struggles, failures and successes are written all over our faces and it is these we need to embrace because they are not signs that we need anti-wrinkle treatments, but signs that we have struggled, we have loved and we have lived.

They are the marks of a life that is extraordinary in its ordinariness. While there is no serious disagreement that longer sessions produce better, and more balanced results, the busiest man or woman on earth can find five minutes a day...and sometimes, that toehold is what it takes to get you started on a new, healthier lifestyle.
